Introducing the Texas Authors Institute of History, Inc.

Originating from a passion for literature and as an active member of the Texas Authors community, I recognized the necessity for a potent marketing tool to assist fellow writers in sharing their extraordinary stories with a global audience. Consequently, in 2015, I established the Texas Authors Institute of History—an unparalleled organization committed to preserving and championing the finest works in Texas literature.

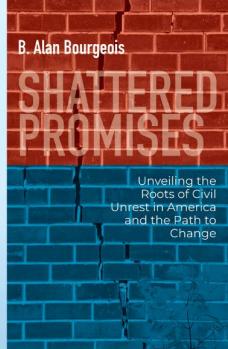

At the core of the Institute stands our remarkable museum, a space that highlights the remarkable literary contributions of Texas authors spanning two centuries. Beyond merely safeguarding history, we aspire to kindle the creativity of future generations, encouraging them to follow in the footsteps of the literary luminaries who preceded them.

We are equally dedicated to supporting and amplifying contemporary Texas authors through our website and networking initiatives. Collaborating with thousands of Texas authors, we've constructed an exceptional platform for writers to showcase their creations and connect with readers globally.

For an immersive experience, don't miss our annual Lone Star Festival—an extraordinary gathering of creatives from various corners of Texas, encompassing artists, musicians, filmmakers, and, of course, writers. It's a unique celebration of the vibrant cultural scene that defines the Lone Star State.

Despite the challenges posed by the past year, including income losses due to COVID-19, we persist in our mission. With an online museum featuring over 1,000 Texas authors and a vast collection of titles, we continue to evolve and expand daily. Supported by our dedicated Board of Directors, we're actively exploring new fundraising initiatives to establish a physical location that will showcase our abundant literary heritage.

Explore the Texas Authors Institute of History and delve into the captivating world of Texas literature today by visiting our website at <http://TexasAuthors.Institute>! Keep in mind that if you're an author residing in Texas, you're automatically a valued member of our museum.

Your Book Gift will Inspire Future Generations!

Nonprofits that support literacy and reading work to distribute books to underprivileged communities, schools, and libraries. They provide access to reading materials for people who may not have the resources to purchase books on their own. By donating your book to one of these organizations, you can help promote literacy and give back to your community.

But why should authors consider donating their books to these nonprofits? Here are a few reasons:

1. Reach a wider audience: By donating your book to a nonprofit, you can help reach a wider audience than you would on your own. Nonprofits that support literacy and reading often have networks in place to distribute books to schools, libraries, and community centers. This means that your book has the potential to reach people who may not have heard of it otherwise.
2. Promote literacy: Donating your book to a nonprofit that supports literacy and reading helps promote literacy and reading in general. Reading is an important skill that can help individuals succeed in life, and by donating your book, you can help make reading materials accessible to people who may not have had access otherwise.
3. Make a difference in your community: Donating your book to a nonprofit is a way to give back to your community. By supporting literacy and reading, you can help make a positive impact on the lives of people in your community.

Gifting Books to TAIH

As an author, you may have spent countless hours writing, revising, and editing your book to make it the best it can be. You may have dreams of it becoming a bestseller, reaching a wide audience, and changing lives. However, the reality is that not everyone can afford to buy books, and many people in underprivileged communities lack access to reading materials. This is where nonprofits that support literacy and reading come in.

They provide access to reading materials for people who may not have the resources to purchase books on their own. By donating your book to one of these organizations, you can help promote literacy and give back to your community.

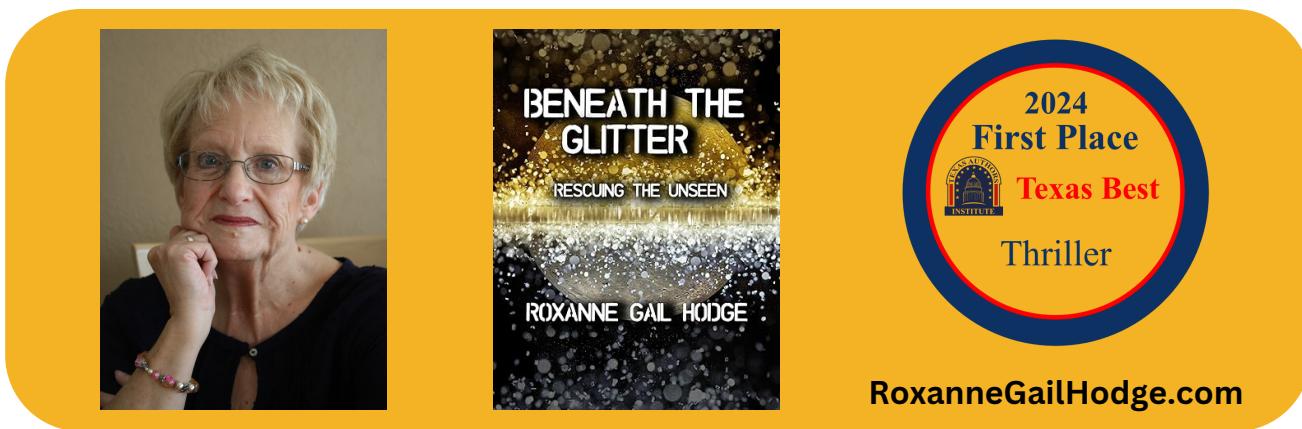

Enhance your reputation: Donating your book to a nonprofit is also a way to enhance your reputation as an author. It shows that you care about more than just selling books and making a profit. It shows that you care about making a positive impact on the world.

If you're interested in donating your book to a nonprofit that supports literacy and reading, consider gifting your manuscript and all of the rights to TAIH before or upon your passing. This allows for your book to continue to remain available to the masses, while helping the nonprofit earn royalties to support its day-to-day operations.

As of the publication of this notice, TAIH has over 50 books that have been gifted to the organization. Helping with an additional $150 per month on average in royalties.

Join fellow authors who have gifted their books to our museum. With 50 books in our current gift registry, we are able to continue to keep those books alive well beyond the passing of the author while supporting a museum that supports future writers. The collage features a portrait of an older woman with blonde hair and glasses, resting her chin on her hand. To her right is the book cover for 'Beneath the Glitter' by Roxanne Gail Hodge, which has a dark background with gold glitter and the title in white. To the right of the book is a circular award seal with a blue border. The seal contains the text '2024 First Place Texas Best' in blue and red, with 'Thriller' at the bottom. The seal also includes the Texas Authors Institute logo.

Texas Association of Authors created the Best of Texas Book Awards at the end of 2011. They held their contest through 2019 until they merged with Indie Beacon and created the Authors Marketing Guild. AMG then became an international organization helping authors around the world.

Texas Authors Institute of History, Inc., did not want to lose the continuation of honoring Texas Authors, so in 2020, they took over the awards program.

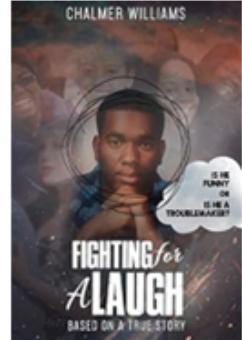

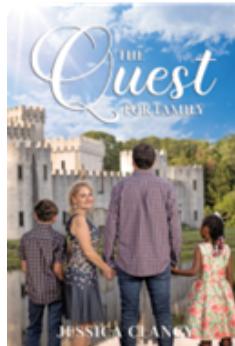

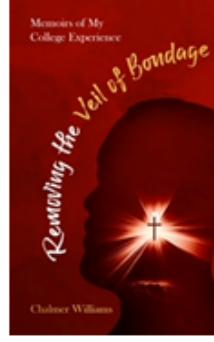

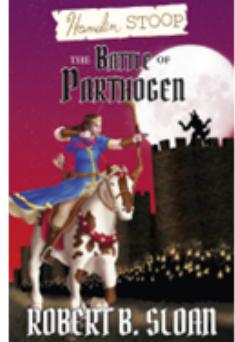

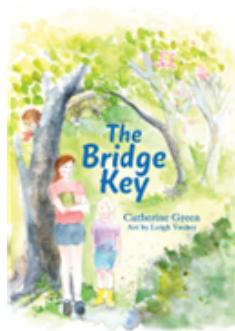

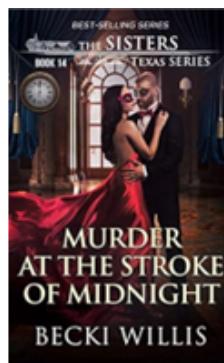

Below are links to each year that TAIH continues to honor the best in Texas books. We hope that authors will continue to submit their books and be part of a great collection of award-winning books and authors.

The Lone Star Festival, conceived by B Alan Bourgeois, was established with the aim of showcasing Texas authors through a grand gathering. Recognizing that the event's success depended on a comprehensive celebration of creativity, it was expanded to encompass various artistic domains, thereby creating the sole festival that nurtures all facets of creativity. This expansion also tapped into a significant source of revenue for creatives: Texas Creatives, which contribute billions of dollars to the US economy.

Annually, the Lone Star Festival serves as a platform for some of the most exciting and emerging talents in the realms of literature, visual arts, music, and soon, film. Each sector highlights the remarkable aspects of the creative world, providing attendees with fresh opportunities to discover both emerging and established Texas-based creative individuals.

Beyond its celebration of creativity, the Lone Star Festival serves as a substantial fundraiser for the Texas Authors Institute of History, Inc. (TAIH). This institute stands as a unique museum, the only one of its kind in the country, dedicated to preserving the rich literary history spanning the past two centuries. In addition to supporting contemporary authors through various marketing initiatives, TAIH also safeguards the literary heritage of Texas while inspiring future generations of writers.

With each passing year, the organizers of the Lone Star Festival eagerly seek to introduce new elements to facilitate its growth, with the goal of becoming the annual must-attend event for all Texans.

For more information about the talented creatives who have participated in previous and current editions of the Lone Star Festival, please visit their website at <http://LoneStarFestival.Fun>.
